Ledston Equine Centre, Castleford, West Yorkshire, WF10 2BB

Manuela McLean is the co-founder of the Australian Equine Behaviour Centre with internationally renowned horse and animal trainer Dr Andrew McLean. Together, they have developed the AEBC training system for horses, a logical, easy to apply and effective training strategy.

The AEBC Training System applies the theory and principles of learning to the systematic training of horses. The responses of the horse to the aids of the rider are trained individually and systematically and are shaped to produce lightness, obedience and relaxation.

Manuela's interest is in classical dressage, the development of the rider's ability to instill invisible and clear signals to the horse, producing clear and immediate responses. Her aim is for riders to have an understanding of how the horse learns, the application of the distinct aids and their associated postural cues, as the foundation of higher level movements.

Manuela has trained and ridden at 3* Eventing and FEI Dressage. She is well known as an enthusiastic, encouraging coach, training horses through relaxation, giving her pupils confidence and a thorough understanding of their training with the latest tools of equitation science. Her pupils in Australia, New Zealand and the UK are competing successfully up to and including FEI level.

She is co-author of Academic Horse Training with husband Dr Andrew McLean, which is the most comprehensible manual of the training of horses worldwide and the only one based solely on scientifically accredited principles of learning theory.
